

hospitality design

june 2017 hospitalitydesign.com

hd awards

wave of the future 2017

HDexpo
hospitality design

→ winner

Inspired by the mechanics of Earth's plates, Oberflex's Tectonique 5.5 creates a new movement for ceilings, giving them a 3D shape, volume, and relief to mimic the topology of the planet. The tiles are made with the company's real wood veneer laminates.

OBERFLEX.COM

"I like the industrial look of it."

—HD Awards judge Joan Cardy

→ finalist

Lotus by Padilla is a modular system that generates vertical gardens on any wall. Made of stainless steel, each piece can be installed with a single nail or screw. Holes at the bottom ensure that water flows down to the next plant, using gravity to water each one, while its hexagonal shape allows for limitless design configurations.

PADILLADESIGNS.COM

→ finalist

Valet by David Rockwell for Stellar Works features tactile and refined materials and details, including saddle leather, American walnut, black steel, and brushed brass. Hexagonal brass hardware doubles as hooks, while the black steel support can be used as a coat rack.

ROCKWELLGROUP.COM; STELLARWORKS.COM